1. John the Baptist

John the Baptist

- JB was a 1st cent. Jewish prophet, proclaiming an eschatological message with some apocalyptic traits.
- His message was imminent judgement and the way to avoid that was by repentance, illustrated by his baptism.
- There is an implied critique of the adequacy of the Temple worship.
- The differences between JB and Qumran are greater than the similarities.
- He anticipated "the coming one", but it is difficult to be more precise than that - an angel? the messiah? a heavenly figure? God himself?
- He had a big influence in his day - as the need to execute him illustrates. Still, any idea of a revolt is due to Herod's paranoia rather than to anything JB actually said.
- The relationship between Jesus and John is hotly disputed - e.g. did Jesus follow his "mentor's" example and baptise?

Now we try to see what happens to him in the tradition.

Mark

JB is mentioned in Mark's gospel either by name or implicitly in the following passages:

Galilee

1:4.6.9.14

Preaching/Baptism

2:18

Fasting, disciples

6:14.16-18.20.24.25

Preaching/Death - Herodian marriages!!

8:28

Identity of Jesus

9:11-13

Has Elijah come?

Jerusalem

11:30-32

John's authority

It is important to exclude what we recall from other sources. Mark's John gives no fierce sermon; he does not positively identify Jesus; he is not related to him; he does not inquire about Jesus. Perhaps the most important datum is that Mark shows no discomfort at all with Jesus' baptism by John, although the one coming is so much mightier.

Finally, there are four passages which can be used to identify tentatively John for Mark's readers. In the first place, according to the prophecy, he precedes the one coming. Secondly, he is dressed as an Elijah figure. Thirdly, he is obliquely recognised by Jesus as the Elijah who was to come. Finally, the argument in 12:30-32 is not just a put-down. It makes explicit Jesus' attitude to John: Jesus accepted his baptism and at 12:30-32 he recognises that John's authority came from God.

JB plays a more important role in Mark than you might think from a first glance. It seems to me that the key : is 1:14. This bridges the arrival of John and the baptism of Jesus with the question of John's arrest and the question of the identity of Jesus. And 1:14 could certainly be read in the sense that Jesus was a disciple of John, who took his place on the stage at the point when John was removed from the stage. This may not simply be a "theologoumenon", i.e. a literary device to foreshadow the outcome of Jesus ministry by placing under the rubric of John's martyrdom. It would be a common opinion among scholars that Jesus acceptance of his role coincides with his baptism; it would not be strange (psychologically) to think of him as starting his ministry when his "leader" was no longer available.

Matthew

JB is mentioned in Matthew's gospel either by name or implicitly in the following passages:

3:1.4.6.13.16	Preaching, Baptism [diff. wording]
4:12	Timing of Jesus' ministry
9:14	Fasting, disciples
11:2.4.7.11-13.18	John's inquiries [only in Mt/Lk]
14:2.3.4.8.10.13	Death of John, Timing of Jesus retreat
16:14	Identity of Jesus
17:10-13	JB = Elijah [not in Lk/ v.13 is unique]
21:25.26.32	Authority of Jesus/John
28:19	Baptism ordered (?)

Again here we have to notice what's missing and what is special. Missing again are birth stories. However, this time for Matthew, JB is brought much closer to Jesus, and yet is distinctly separated from him. They are brought closes in this way:

their preaching is identical (3:2: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.") = 4:17

the effect is similar (21:32: For John came to you in the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and the harlots believed him; and even when you saw it, you did not afterward repent and believe him), their opposition to the insincerity of the Pharisees expressed in similar words (23:33: You serpents, you brood of vipers, how are you to escape being sentenced to hell?) = 3:7.

Likewise their fates are expressly alike (17:12: but I tell you that Eli'jah has already come, and they did not know him, but did to him whatever they pleased. So also the Son of man will suffer at their hands.").

Matthew can risk these similarities without danger because he has in subtle and unsubtle ways made it clear who John is.

(1) First of all JB simply is Elijah. That gives him a specific role quite distinct in Matthew's mind from the Messiah.

(2) That role is made very clear in JB's question - he is shows as the "precursor".

(3) Likewise, the little theological discussion about who should baptise whom makes it clear that Matthew is embarrassed by this event, cannot deny and is obliged to explicate it to avoid misunderstanding.

The disciples of John (and not the disciples of the Pharisees!!) in Matthew pose the question about fasting (compare Mark) and this could well mean that the continuing Johannine community has taken the side of unbelievers, according to Matthew. (This fits in with the discussion about the Baptism, which tends to show how right was John in recognising Jesus and how wrong are John's followers not to "follow" their own master.) Likewise, John is somewhat mistaken about Jesus - he does not come as a whirlwind - hence the doubts of John about Jesus. Finally, the ministry of Jesus is separated by a very long temptation story, which tends to detach the start of the ministry from the experience of the Baptism - a possible theological aim of Matthew.

"The care with which the authors seek to clarify the roles of and relationship between these two figures suggests that, because of the impact of John's ministry and the close proximity of John and Jesus, there was a distinct possibility of the readers confusing the two men and their ministry. Indeed, when Herod, after having had John beheaded, is informed of Jesus' ministry, his first thought is that Jesus John has come back to life"

Matt. 14:1 ¶ At that time Herod the ruler heard reports about Jesus; 2 and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has been raised from the dead, and for this reason these powers are at work in him."

Mark 6:14 ¶ King Herod heard of it, for Jesus' name had become known. Some were saying, "John the baptiser has been raised from the dead; and for this reason these powers are at work in him." 15 But others said, "It is Elijah." And others said, "It is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old." 16 But when Herod heard of it, he said, "John, whom I beheaded, has been raised."

Luke 9:7 ¶ Now Herod the ruler heard about all that had taken place, and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John had been raised from the dead, 8 by some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the ancient prophets had arisen. 9 Herod said, "John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?" And he tried to see him.

Luke

JB is mentioned in Mark's gospel either by name or implicitly in the following passages:

1:13.17.60.63	Birth, Naming, like Elijah
3:2.15.16.20	Preaching (against Herod), Baptism, is he the Christ? John in prison
3:21	Jesus' Baptism reported by participle
5:33	Fasting, John's disciples
7:18-20.22.24.28-29.33	John's inquiry, John's identity
9:7-9.19	John's death abbreviated (!) [omit/history
11:1	Jesus' prayer - cf. John (!)
16:16	Exact position of John
20:4.6	Authority of John and Jesus

Parallel annunciation and birth accounts which carefully distinguish John from Jesus. The birth stories fall into a chiastic pattern:

Annunciation of John's birth (1:5-25)
 Annunciation of Jesus' birth (1:26-35)
 The two mothers meet (1:36-45)
 Mary praises God for Jesus (1:46-56)
 Zechariah praises God for John (1:57-80)

Thus we have a pattern: A-B-C-B¹-A¹. In this way Luke makes the basic two-sided point: John the Baptist and Jesus are closely allied in the scheme of salvation, but John is subordinate to Jesus. The question is explicitly asked if he, John, might be the Christ and explicit answer given.

3:15 As the people were in expectation, and all men questioned in their hearts concerning John, whether perhaps he were the Christ [Lk only],
16 John answered them all, "I baptise you with water; but he who is mightier than I is coming, the thong of whose sandals I am not worthy to untie; he will baptise you with the Holy Spirit and with fire.

The baptism is very peculiarly reported: apparently John does not even baptise Jesus, since he is already imprisoned (or at least not "narratively" present) when Jesus is baptised (3:20 and 21).

Luke 3:20 added this to them all, that he shut up John in prison. 21 Now when all the people were baptised, and when Jesus also had been baptised and was praying, the heaven was opened,

Thus John is quickly whisked off the stage. Later, the timing of Jesus' ministry is detached from the arrest of John (4:14: And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee, and a report concerning him went out through all the surrounding country.). Luke omits the story of John's execution by Herod (after 9:7-9), and this omission expresses Jesus' distinctive superiority to John, for it is the Messiah who must die in a special way (24:26: Was it not necessary that the Christ should suffer these things and enter into his glory?). John the Baptist is a transitional figure between "the law and the prophets" and Jesus the Christ, the Son of God. John is not Elijah, tout court as in Matthew. In fact, the elements of the figure of Elijah are shared in Luke between John the Baptist and Jesus himself. This is because, for Luke, Jesus is "the" prophet, who bears the identifying marks of another great and well-remembered prophet, Elijah.

In the Acts, the story is similar:

1:5.22; 10:37; 11:16; 13:24-25; 18:25; 19:3.4

The "bridge" nature of the ministry of John is especially clear from Acts 1:22 beginning from the baptism of John until the day when he was taken up from us --one of these men must become with us a witness to his resurrection." [Hence the "problem" of JB for Lk/Acts]

Here, Luke places him on the Christian "side", so to speak. Disciples of John are mentioned at 18:24-25 and 19:3-4

Acts 18:24 ¶ Now there came to Ephesus a Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria. He was an eloquent man, well-versed in the scriptures. 25 He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord; and he spoke with burning enthusiasm and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus, though he knew only the baptism of John. 26 He began to speak boldly in the synagogue; but when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him aside and explained the Way of God to him more accurately. 27 And when he wished to cross over to Achaia, the believers encouraged him and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival he greatly helped those who through grace had become believers, 28 for he powerfully refuted the Jews in public, showing by the scriptures that the Messiah is Jesus.

Acts 19:3 Then he said, "Into what then were you baptised?" They answered, "Into John's baptism." 4 Paul said, "John baptised with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus."

And he said, "Into what then were you baptised?" They said, "Into John's baptism." 4 And Paul said, "John baptised with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, Jesus."

JB is mentioned in Q in the following places: Q 1, 2, 3, then Q 14, 15, 16 and finally Q 62

John

Here are the references to JB in John:

1:6-8.15	Prologue: comparisons [only in Jn
:19-23	Witness of John: not Elijah/ prophet
:24-28	The "voice" [= citation
:29-34	Reports descent of the Spirit [= report
:35-42	Jesus "detaches" John's disciples
3:22-27	Jesus baptising (!); JB not in prison [4:1
4:1-2	Jesus did/did not baptise; makes more disciples than John [tension!
5:33-36	Jesus is greater than John
10:40-41	Jesus goes back to where John had been

Things to notice: there is a flat denial that JB is either Elijah or the prophet. Why? There is an emphasis on taking followers from John and gaining more disciples than John. Why? John fits no categories known to Jewish expectation, except the citation from Isaiah. He is, however, portrayed as the "friend of the bridegroom":

John 3:29 He who has the bride is the bridegroom. The friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices greatly at the bridegroom's voice. For this reason my joy has been fulfilled. [Note Jn vocabulary; see the whole speech.]

The picture of John the Baptist in the gospel of John is very clearly focused, and as in Luke's case it may be summed up in one of the gospel's pungent statements: "He was not the light, but came to bear witness to the light" (1:8). In accordance with this gospel's outlook, John the Baptist is not seen in strictly historical terms. Rather, the terminology is abstract and especially legal: John is a witness to tell the truth. This basic theme is sustained by two sub themes: John is not the light, rather Jesus is the light and since Jesus is the light he ranks before John and must increase in stature, while John must decrease. The imprisonment of John is reported as not yet having taken place. But it and his death are not reported. There is thus no chance of a comparison between the death of John and the death of Jesus.

Gospel of the Nazoreans

This apocryphal gospel can be approximately dated 180 because it is quoted by Hegesippus, thus providing a terminus a quo. [Hegesippus was in a way a predecessor of Eusebius as a church historian. He wrote a work called uJJpomnhmata ejkklhsiaстикwn praxewn (Memoirs of the Acts of the Church). A terminus ad quem is provided by Tatian's Diatessaron. The only solid date for Tatian is 172 AD.. It is not clear when he produced his Harmony of the gospels. In any case, the text from the gospel of the Nazoreans reads as follows:

- Behold, the mother of the Lord and his brethren said to him: John the Baptist baptises unto the remission of sins, let us go and be baptised by him. But he said to them: Wherein have I sinned that I should go and be baptised by him? Unless what I have said is ignorance (a sin of ignorance).

You see here from the text, that Jesus refuses to be baptised by John - a symptom of the growing Christian unease with this event.

The role of John may be seen as follows:

The question arises: why all this variety, what is going on? What are the appropriate questions to put to this mass of material? Why the variety? Are the birth stories historical?

Work sheet

A) He went out again beside the sea; and all the crowd gathered about him, and he taught them. And as he passed on, he saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax office, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he rose and followed him.

B) Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. And they watched him, to see whether he would heal him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. And he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come here." And he said to them, "Is it lawful on the sabbath to do good or to do harm, to save life or to kill?" But they were silent. And he looked around at them with anger, grieved at their hardness of heart, and said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. The Pharisees went out, and immediately held counsel with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

C) And when he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home. And many were gathered together, so that there was no longer room for them, not even about the door; and he was preaching the word to them. And they came, bringing to him a paralytic carried by four men. And when they could not get near him because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and when they had made an opening, they let down the pallet on which the paralytic lay. And when Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "My son, your sins are forgiven." Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, "Why does this man speak thus? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?" And immediately Jesus, perceiving in his spirit that they thus questioned within themselves, said to them, "Why do you question thus in your hearts? Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Rise, take up your pallet and walk'? But that you may know that the Son of man has authority on earth to forgive sins"--he said to the paralytic-- "I say to you, rise, take up your pallet and go home." And he rose, and immediately took up the pallet and went out before them all; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, "We never saw anything like this!"

D) Now John's disciples and the Pharisees were fasting; and people came and said to him, "Why do John's disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?" And Jesus said to them, Can the wedding guests fast while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. The days will come, when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast in that day.

E) And as he sat at table in his house, many tax collectors and sinners were sitting with Jesus and his disciples; for there were many who followed him. And the scribes of the Pharisees, when they saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, said to his disciples, "Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?" And when Jesus heard it, he said to them, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I came not to call the righteous, but sinners."

F) One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. And the Pharisees said to him, "Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?" And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did, when he was in need and was hungry, he and those who were with him: how he entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and also gave it to those who were with him?" And he said to them, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath;

G) No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old garment; if he does, the patch tears away from it, the new from the old, and a worse tear is made. And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; if he does, the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is lost, and so are the skins; but new wine is for fresh skins.

H) so the Son of man is lord even of the sabbath."

Mark 2:1 When he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home. 2 So many gathered around that there was no longer room for them, not even in front of the door; and he was speaking the word to them. 3 Then some people came, bringing to him a paralyzed man, carried by four of them. 4 And when they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and after having dug through it, they let down the mat on which the paralytic lay. 5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Son, your sins are forgiven." 6 Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, 7 "Why does this fellow speak in this way? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?" 8 At once Jesus perceived in his spirit that they were discussing these questions among themselves; and he said to them, "Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? 9 Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up and take your mat and walk'? 10 But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic— 11 "I say to you, stand up, take your mat and go to your home." 12 And he stood up, and immediately took the mat and went out before all of them; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, "We have never seen anything like this!"

Mark 2:13 Jesus went out again beside the sea; the whole crowd gathered around him, and he taught them. 14 As he was walking along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax booth, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he got up and followed him.

Mark 2:15 And as he sat at dinner in Levi's house, many tax collectors and sinners were also sitting with Jesus and his disciples—for there were many who followed him. 16 When the scribes of the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they said to his disciples, "Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?" 17 When Jesus heard this, he said to them, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners."

Mark 2:18 Now John's disciples and the Pharisees were fasting; and people came and said to him, "Why do John's disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?" 19 Jesus said to them, "The wedding guests cannot fast while the bridegroom is with them, can they? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. 20 The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day.

Mark 2:21 "No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak; otherwise, the patch pulls away from it, the new from the old, and a worse tear is made. 22 And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise, the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is lost, and so are the skins; but one puts new wine into fresh wineskins."

Mark 2:23 One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. 24 The Pharisees said to him, "Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?" 25 And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry and in need of food? 26 He entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and he gave some to his companions." 27 Then he said to them, "The sabbath was made for humankind, and not humankind for the sabbath; 28 so the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath."

Mark 3:1 Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. 2 They watched him to see whether he would cure him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. 3 And he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come forward." 4 Then he said to them, "Is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to kill?" But they were silent. 5 He looked around at them with anger; he was grieved at their hardness of heart and said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. 6 The Pharisees went out and immediately conspired with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

2. Source Criticism

a) Introduction to Source Criticism

The two advantages of source criticism is that it may allow you to see the genesis of the written work and secondly to understand the literary and theological character of the work better.

Having established the text, source criticism is the first of a series of questions one may put to the text.

b) The Methods of Source Criticism

Questions:

key questions

Has an author used one or more sources?
What sources are used by the author?

secondary questions

How much of the text is based on a source?
How much of the source is incorporated into the text?
How has the author made use of the source?

Criteria

Explicit Citation
Redundancy,
Context,
Vocabulary and style
Ideology
Structure

Explicit citation

The simplest example is Mk 1:2-3. Is the citation accurate? No - it comes from a mix of Is 40:3 and Ex 23:20/ Mal 3:1. This was spotted by Mt who disperses the citation at 3:3 and 11:10.

Redundancy

Redundancy or repetition is not actually that common in the NT. A glaring example is John 13-17 where 13 and 14 are more or less repeated in 15 and 16. In Mt there are two statements on divorce - from different sources: 5,32 (from the Sayings Source) and 19,9 (from Mark). The two miracles of the loaves would have been seen as an example.

Context

Sometimes a text shows hard connections or inconsistencies or even contradictions - and that can indicate that an author is using undigested source material. There is a famous example in Mark 9,14-29. An example of a clear break can be found in John 14:31.

vv.14 and 25: the crowd is introduced twice vv. 17. and 20: the boy is twice presented vv. 17 and 25: the spirit is called dumb and unclean.

A certain critique of this could be made from a narrative point of view.

Another technique in Mark is the so-called "sandwich technique" in which one story is squeezed into another. This is common in Mark - e.g. 5,21-43.

Vocabulary and Style

Here you have to notice changes in vocabulary and terminology and the author's style. For instance, Luke 1,1-4 is written in an excellent Greek style and is difficult to read. However, his stories of the birth of Jesus are written in a different Greek, more Jewish, more like the Greek of the Greek OT (LXX). Likewise Mark 16:9-15 would be an example.

Ideology

By this is meant, ideas, theme, theological tendencies and points of view. Now if we find in a work such ideas etc. which jar or are far from typical, then we may have a source. The most typical example is Phil 2,6-11. Also Mark 2:1-3:6 - different ideology.

Structure

As a supporting argument, the discovery of a tight structure might help confirm the identification of a source. On its own, however, it is insufficient.

So far the method sounds simple. But it is a little subjective and hard to use - the strongest criterion is really context.

A distinction may be made between a source which is traditional and written. The criteria for a written source have been sharpened by Koch in his article on source criticism in the ABD VI 165-171 (Source Criticism [NT]). Verbatim, as follows:

(A) The traditional material included in an extant writing cannot be regarded to be transmitted orally either because of its size or because of its literary structure.

(B) This material forms a text which can reasonably be assumed to have been an independent writing; that is the case, if it reveals a literary structure and theological ideas fundamental to the whole body of material.

(C) In addition, insertions interrupting the body of the supposed source are clear indications for the use of a source. Such insertions point to the author of the extant writing, who is interpreting in this way an already written text.

(D) If the supposed source forms a collection of different traditions originally orally transmitted, a decisive criterion in the proving that there are editorial links or remarks which cannot be assigned to the author of the extant writing. Such editorial links or remarks point to an early stage of editorial activity, i.e. to the editorial framework of the source.

(E) No definite evidence, however, can be drawn from differences of vocabulary and style, as any author is able to remould a written text (although not all NT writers do this), or, on the other hand, to adopt the style and vocabulary of a source in passages which he is going to write himself. Therefore, observations on different style and language can only have subsidiary importance.

c) The Synoptic Question

For the Synoptics, the most important element of Source Criticism is the Synoptic Fact - the use by Mt and Lk of Mk, and the identification of the material they have in common apart from Mark. That helps a lot. We will see this synoptic problem much later. Here are a few facts:

Only in Mark:	5% of the gospel
Only in Matthew	20% of the gospel
Only in Luke	43% of the gospel of which 2 fifths appear in Lk 1-2

Sayings Source 253 vv. found in Mt and Lk.

Of Mark:	90% in Matthew 50%+ in Luke

3. Historical Criticism

1) Introduction

2) The criteria used in this work

a) DISSIMILARITY OR DISCONTINUITY: a saying may be attributed to Jesus when it cannot be traced to any other source in contemporary Judaism or to the concerns of the early church

b) MULTIPLE ATTESTATION: this is perhaps the least dangerous - it means that a saying crops up in the different strands/sources which make up the NT: Mk, Q, M, L, John, Hebrews, Revelation, James.

c) THE ANTIQUITY OF THE SOURCES: Using literary criticism, form criticism and genre criticism, older material can be distinguished from later texts which have been edited or under the redactional influence of the final writer; if after all that, the saying fits the setting in Palestine - either by the language used (it can be retrojected into Hebrew or Aramaic) or it reflects the culture, life and customs of Palestine of the first third of the first century, then it can with probability be linked to the historical Jesus.

d) COHERENCE: if we find other teachings which do not "pass" the above criteria but which are consistent with material so passed, then we may have an original saying of Jesus.

e) SUFFICIENT GROUNDS: a fact or event is to be taken as historical when without the acceptance of its reality a whole series of other facts cannot be properly understood or explained.

There are of course weakness in all these criteria.

Stanton suggests the following "working hypothesis". Taking account of the following four factors we may assumed that the traditions of the actions and teachings of Jesus preserved in the synoptic gospels are "authentic".

- (i) the evangelists have introduced modifications to the traditions;
- (ii) and they are largely responsible for their present contexts;
- (iii) some traditions can be shown to stem from the post-Easter period rather than the lifetime of Jesus;
- (iv) since certainty nearly always eludes us, we have to concede that some traditions are more probably authentic than others.

4. Redaction Criticism

(1) What is Redaction Criticism?

Redaction Criticism grew up largely after WWII and was an attempt to go beyond the disintegrating tendencies of form criticism by seeking out the editorial policy of the different writers, or better their theologies, and to treat them as authors.

(2) What questions does Redaction Criticism ask?

- a) What choice of texts has the writer made and why?
What has been included from sources and what has been excluded and why?
- b) What modifications has the writer made to his sources
- can we see any particular theology emerging in the "editorial policy"?
- c) What is the overall structure and arrangement of the gospels?
Does the structure reveal a plan, even a theology?
- d) What contributions can we notice from the authors own ideology and style?
Are there passages which are clearly editorial, which allows us to put our finger again on the author's special interests?

(3) What are the presuppositions of Redaction Critics?

- (1) That the synoptics are not homogeneous compositions, but collections of small units of narrative and discourse material
- (2) That in the oral tradition which preceded the documentation of these units of material, only small units were handed on - i.e. single sayings, small collections of logia, singles stories.
- (3) That each of the units of material presently contained in the synoptics had a definite oral form (and has a corresponding literary form) that corresponded to a particular life situation in the early Church.
- (4) That each of the evangelists made use of this oral tradition in the composition of his gospel. In doing so, Mark created the gospel genre. Matthew and Luke made use of Mark but also made use of traditional material which was known to them independently of the Markan Gospel.
- (5) That the Resurrection faith of the early church shaped and moulded the transmission of these units of material as well as the composite Gospels themselves.
- (6) That the biography format is a literary construction of the evangelists; accordingly it is methodologically illegitimate to attempt to write a life of Jesus on the basis of the Gospels.
- (7) That it is quite likely that some of these units of material were collected into relatively homogeneous documents prior to their appropriation by the evangelists; and that it is possible to discern the theological tendencies of these source documents.

(4) What are the methods of Redaction Criticism?

The chief method is very careful comparison of texts.

(5) What are the risks of redaction criticism?(6) For example the calming of the storm in Mk and Mt

Mk 4:35 On that day, when evening had come, he said to them, "Let us go across to the other side."

Mt. 8:18 Now when Jesus saw great crowds around him, he gave orders to go over to the other side.

8:19 And a scribe came up and said to him, "Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go."

8:20 And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head."

8:21 Another of the disciples said to him, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father."

8:22 But Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and leave the dead to bury their own dead."

8:23 And when he got into the boat, his disciples followed him.

4:36 And leaving the crowd, they took him with them in the boat, just as he was.
And other boats were with him.

4:37 And a great storm of wind arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was already filling.

4:38 But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they woke him and said to him, "Teacher, do you not care if we perish?"

4:39 And he awoke and rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace! Be still!" And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

4:40 He said to them, "Why are you afraid? Have you no faith?"

4:41 And they were filled with awe, and said to one another, "Who then is this, that even wind and sea obey him?"

8:24 And behold, there arose a great storm on the sea, so that the boat was being swamped by the waves;

but he was asleep. 8:25 And they went and woke him, saying, "Save, Lord; we are perishing."

8:26 And he said to them, "Why are you afraid, O men of little faith?" Then he rose and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm.

8:27 And the men marvelled, saying, "What sort of man is this, that even winds and sea obey him?"
